JUNE 30, 1886.

The circulation of a newspaper determines the value of its columns as an advertising medium. The NEWS-HERALD has by far the largest circulation of any paper in Highland county, which fact advertisers would do well to bear in mind. Our lists are open to their inspection.

The Republican Convention to nominate a candidate for Circuit Judge in the Fourth Circuit of Ohio, meets at Chillicothe to-day. Highland county is represented by nine delegates.

The editor of the Gazette giving advice to Allen O. Myers, managing editor of the Enquirer is just too utterly funny for anything! A paper with a circulation of 1,000 telling a paper with a circulation of 70,000 how it ought to conduct itself!—Since writing the foregoing a dispatch received over our private line from Cincinnati assures us that Mr. Myers will fire out Gath and otherwise rearrange the office to suit the Gazette.

Is there no one who craves to gain immortality in an Arctic expedition this summer? Does not the gang that paid $265,000 for a seat in the U. S. Senate want a more lasting reputation? Those who have been such diligent students of anthropology in the rear rooms of Ohio's capitol ought to feel interested in other branches of science and an ocean voyage would be much more safe to a set of navigators who could grease the Atlantic with Standard Oil. It is certain that can never be an honest election in Ohio till the famous kerosene company goes to Canada or is swallowed up by North sea whales. Big of bone and large of tail.

That oleomargarine bill is under discussion again. The suppression of imitations of butter may be beneficial to dairymen, but it looks very much like legislation against the public in favor of a class, which is always wrong. Enemies of oleomargarine have written page after page to create nausea in the public's stomach by describing the ingredients of the new product. But, notwithstanding all that has been said there are people who persist in eating bogus butter, in preference to the genuine extract of cow, with its uncertain percentage of hair and other nutritious substances. Butter radicals forget that calf's stomach figures in the manufacture of all cheese and pork is obtained from one of the dirtiest brutes that tread the soil. Give oleomargarine fair treatment and don't idolize the cow.

How now? The High street organ declares in italics that genuine and thorough Civil Service Reform is one of the fundamental principles of Democracy. Not more than two months ago it criticized the President in an editorial and said plainly that the editors of the Gazette were opposed to Civil Service Reform! Wherefore the change? These statements prove conclusively that there is a very positive lack of sympathy somewhere, and give force to the ancient statement of Eyal, illustrious editor of the People's Defender, when he said the editors of the Gazette were not Democrats at heart and only avowed Democratic ideas to glean Democratic pap. The politics of Hough & Ditzler are as mysterious as the 13-14-15 puzzle. But supposing that harmony exists between the Gazette and the G. O. P., why does not the party, so devoted to Civil Service Reform, put a little more of it into practice? Why was George H. Pendleton, the champion of the C. S. R., removed from his seat in the Senate? Does Grover appear as a living example of that principle when he signs as many Postmasters' commissions every day as he can read? Consistency is a jewel, but Democratic diadems are decidedly scarce.

The committee to investigate the Payne election case has disgraced itself and the body from which it was chosen. A lamentable fact is that Messrs. Logan, Evans and Teller, three prominent Republicans, have joined with the Democrats in winking at one of the most audacious pieces of corruption in the history of the country. The good people of Ohio feel the sting of defeat in trying to bring boudiers to justice, and it is probable that the people are holding up their heads with a high and uncorrupted Washingtonians when uncorrupted. The man who has skepticism enough to doubt that Payne and his corps of assistants bribed legislators by wholesale and retail, would doubt that the sun shines or the earth revolves. The mere fact that the Enquirer gang denies the existence of fraud is sufficient to convince all honorable and observing people that corruption is plentiful. Yet with all varieties of cold facts staring them in the face, a majority of the investigating committee had the charming audacity to decide that no investigation was needed. General Boynton's sarcastic question to the committee is: "If $265,000 worth of bribery is not sufficient how much bribery is required to warrant an investigation of election by the U. S. Senate?" The Governor of Ohio and both branches of the Legislature have openly declared that boudie was used in Payne's election and the press has not ceased to urge that the record of the State be purged of such disgraceful history. Is it true that Coolidge holds sway in the Congress of the Nation?

Another Scene in Paradise.

And the pilgrims moved up to the narrow entrance and St. Peter stood over against the box office.

And a tall, lank man, in a Prince Albert coat leaned his elbows on the pearly gate-post and heaved a sigh that blew down a sign-board marked, "Keep off the grass."

And Peter eyed the new-comer steadfastly and said, "your card please." And, straightway the slim man drew forth a red leather pocket book, filled with green-backs. And on one side of these were stamped the words, "Political Currency of Ohio," and on the other side were stamped the words, "Boudie Series of 1885." Whilst he searched, behold there dropped on the threshold a calling card bearing the name of "John R. McLean."

And the slim man stretched forth his hand and gave unto Peter a card on which was printed in script, R. M. Dittie, P. J. On the lower left-hand corner was the imprint of the Gazette Job Office, Hillsboro, Ohio.

And Peter lifted up his voice and said, "What meaneth the P. J.?"

And a voice from above was heard saying, "It standeth for Punch and Judy."

Looking for the owner of the voice the NEWS-HERALD man beheld R. S. Woodrow in a sycamore tree, over the gateway.

Peter saith unto Dittie "Whence comest thou?"

And Dittie answered, "I was born under the hazy skies of Dodson township."

"That is the location of the Lynchburg distillery?"

"Yea, verily!"

"Dost thou believe in prohibition?"

"Nay; but free whisky."

"Then why earnest thou to the Prohibitionists?"

"We cannot carry Highland county without their votes."

"Hast thou a majority with them?"

"Nay, unless we use boudie."

"Dost thou handle the boudie?"

"Yea, Lord."

"And art a servant of McLean?"

"Verily."

Then Peter's visage was changed and he said with a loud voice "Art thou the editor of the Gazette?"

And Dittie smote upon his breast and said "Yea, truly."

Then said Peter unto the usher, "Remove him hence and when next comes a member of the Gazette firm, suffer him not to approach the portals."

Necrosis Desmetude.

We hung our pedal extremities over the gas fixtures one afternoon last week and read the Gazette's rambling editorial on, "The Worship of False Gods." We read and wondered and then read some more and wondered some more. It is very evident that the fellow who wrote that article does not sympathize with Hough & Dittie, or any others of Highland's Democratic chiefs. There are a good many anxious readers of the Gazette who want to know how such stuff got into the paper, who put it there, and how long the pro tem editor will remain on the tripod. There are old-time-worn Democrats all over the county whose stream of profanity has been incessant since the paper appeared.

The objection to the article from a Democratic standpoint is that the writer looks not at the glittering visions of cross-roads post offices and Chinese consularships, but at the disgusting filth through which the party is wading to reach its goal. This is to Democratic eyes an unpardonable error. To the genuine all-wool-and-an-inch-thick Democrat ends are everything and means are nothing. If Payne gets his seat in the U. S. Senate, it matters not that the halls of the Legislature are stuffed with boudie till greenbacks tumble out of the windows. If John R. McLean rules the party, who cares if 2's change to 5's and 7's to 9's and policemen to criminals!

The writer spreads himself out over a column of space to tell what the party used to be, what it is not, and what it ought to be, but not a word about what it is! People of investigating dispositions would like to know where a man's feet would be if they were "planted on the solid platform of Democracy as laid down by Thomas Jefferson." Mr. Jefferson is too undeniably dead to have his feet on any platform and the question now agitating the public mind is "what is the Democratic party of to-day?" The invariable answer to this question is to recount the dark catalogue of abuses already suffered. In short the Democratic party favors what Republicans oppose and opposes what Republicans favor. The Gazette's hired man makes a new departure by trying to steal some Republican principles and to present them as blocks from the Democratic platform.

From beginning to end the article is the opposite of Jeffersonian simplicity in that opposite's most striking form. Nothing could have less apparent meaning and be so peculiarly non-committal, except a Democratic platform. The liquor question is handled very gingerly. The writer touches the matter in a pious manner, without affirming one thing or denying another in regard to the prohibition or continuation of the traffic. He hopes that Democrats will not support saloon keepers in fighting a $200 tax law. Not less earnestly does he hope that Democrats will quit voting the prohibition ticket. Why did he not admit that the Republican platform furnished the only solution for the liquor problem in its present stage? Why did he not say that the Dow law was a Republican measure and that it was the only possible thing for sensible people to endorse under the existing circumstances? Impressive silence mocks the inquiry and the rumble of tumbling Democracy is heard in the distance.

DODSONVILLE.

June 28th, 1886.
Dick Brown, of Hillsboro, is the guest of Robert Stroup.

The Misses Scott, of Hillsboro, Sundayed with friends here.

Quite a number of our Catholic children were confirmed at St. Martin's on Monday.

Lon Smith and family, of Sharpsville, visited at the residence of Riley Michael on Friday.

Messrs. Ed F. Ellis, John Briggs and John McCloy were in Georgetown on business Saturday.

Misses Belle Thompson and Lois Parker visited the Vance sisters at Allensburg on Monday.

The seventh annual picnic of the Dodsonville Cornet Band will take place in the near future.

Chas. Stroup had a valuable cow killed by lightning last Thursday. Loss covered by insurance.

Messrs. Gatch Brown, of Hillsboro and Milton Harcourt McLean, of the suburbs, were the guests of Bob Stroup on Tuesday.

Mary Ann Leggett, aged 90, departed this life on Friday. The remains were interred in the Frothingham cemetery on Sunday afternoon.

The officers of this end of the township have ordered the people to keep their stock off the street. This is a move in the right direction and the order should be strictly enforced.

Quite a number of our citizens have moved to appear before Judge Dittie on Friday to give testimony in the case, State vs. Samuel Workman. Workman was acquitted of the charge.

Mr. Alvin Taylor, a citizen of this place, while in Lynchburg, Monday, rammed his elbow through a show-case in one of the leading business villages of that village. Some harsh words ensued between the proprietor and the unfortunate. The difficulty was settled by Taylor engaging to deliver one cord of stove wood to the merchant ere sundown the next evening.

Children's Day was observed here on Sunday. The audience was small, owing to the inclemency of the weather, yet the exercises were very interesting and attractive. The house was beautifully decorated and, notwithstanding the gloominess outside, the chapel presented a lively spring-like appearance which caused the hearts of the children to bound with enthusiasm. After the rendering of the Children's Day hymn, the pastor, Mr. J. W. Thompson, addressed the audience in his usual dignified manner and we trust, made impressions on the minds of the rising generations which may never be forgotten, but may ever remain as monuments erected to the memory of the day when they made their resolution to begin life anew.

LEENBURG.

June 29th, 1886.
Miss May Johnson is entertaining friends from Washington C. H.

Mr. E. F. Hickman, of the Buckeye, was in Hillsboro on business on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Teller, of Chillicothe, are visiting at the home of their parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Griffith, of Hopewell, Ill., returned to their home last week.

The very presence of our poorly Marshall, Mr. Whitfield Dunn, is a terror to evil-doers. They forget their evil ways and walk in the way of the righteous. This is as it should be. Unfortunate he makes a fine appearance.

Some contemptible persons having a spite against Mr. S. H. Beard, took it out on his horse. On Saturday night the horse was taken from the stable, and all about off, and then he was turned loose. Mr. Beard says very little about the matter, but he is on the trail of the perpetrators.

The entertainment given by the orchestra last Saturday night, was a success. The audience was not as large as it should have been, but those present were delighted with the program. The boys deserve great praise for what they have done towards building up a taste for music in Leenbourg. Further effort in that line will be highly appreciated by our citizens.

It seems that the Prohibitionists will hold a meeting at East Monticello, July 1st.

"Sunday School Celebration" colors. They should remember the ignoble failure of the school to hold the Anniversary Frolics.

It is far better to sail under true colors. Miss Gardner, Prohibitionist, from Washington C. H., Morris Sharp, Prohibitionist, from Hillsboro, and Mr. J. W. Thompson, from Leenbourg, are announced as the Sunday School speakers for the occasion.

We believe the following from the editor of the Leenbourg Buckeye will be of interest to many readers of the NEWS-HERALD. It will not only be of interest, but Mr. Hickman has evidently a correct idea of the situation in the Twelfth District: "Senator Pagley is the strongest man, and if Highland does the right thing she can secure the nomination for him."

The article is in relation to a short trip through Fayette and Clinton, a few days since. "We also met two political leaders from eastern Clinton. They think that Clinton will not make much of an effort to secure the nomination."

They regard Doane as having already been too long on their hands, and the other three or four men spoken of as candidates are regarded entirely too weak to carry the district at large. When it is remembered that the delegates would vote, they thought that some votes would be for Doane, while the others would be divided between Pagley and Hart."

And in the end Pagley would be elected by a large majority. They also considered Pagley a dangerous man, but were willing to stand by him, because he was one of our own people, and for some reason that trial had hurt him badly, and two-thirds of the delegates would be sent to the Convention to ballot for Pagley. This is all that can be said for the present. It will be seen that if old Highland agrees on the right man and votes solidly for that man, we can secure the nomination if we do not lose it."

Taking the district throughout Senator Pagley is the strongest man, and if Highland does the right thing, she can secure the nomination for him."

Sick Headache.

Gentle—I have been subject to Sick Headache for years, and have tried, in vain, many advertised remedies and several physicians, but to no purpose. I have last tried your B. B. Bitters—without much faith, I admit—but to-day I can truly say, that after taking the third bottle I have not suffered from it. I recommend it to all my friends; several have been cured by it. My little grandson was permanently cured of Biliousness and Sick Headache, which were so severe as to cause convulsions. They have all ceased since he commenced the use of B. B. B.

J. L. Jones was called to May Hill on account of the serious sickness of his father.

Dr. J. W. Thompson and family were called to the Ridge last Thursday on account of the serious illness of the doctor's mother.

Miss Rebecca Lemon has returned from the Hills City, where she has been visiting her cousin, Mandamus Turner and family.

The ordinance of baptism which was to have been administered was postponed for four weeks on account of inclemency of the weather.

Visitors from a distance—At C. A. Pennington's, Miss Stella Petrow, at John Eakins', her brother, Jim, of New Market, at Mrs. Leonard's, Ed Purdy and lady, of New Market, at Wm. Kelly's, Rev. Nathan Evesland, of Chillicothe.

FAIRFAX.

June 30th, 1886.

Mit Easter is about to loose a valuable horse with lung fever.

A Miss McDaniels, from the Hill City, is the guest of Miss Ole Gray.

Mr. Tom Custer has been visiting his brother-in-law, J. A. Gilbert, this week.

Rev. J. W. Douglas will fill the M. E. pulpit on the first Sabbath night of July.

There has not been such a crop of wheat raised in this vicinity for many years.

Mrs. Fie Wrenn, of Jacksonville, Adams county, is the guest of Mrs. W. H. Reno this week.

Mr. Henry Carlisle, of our village, has been sued by Mrs. Mary A. Carlisle for divorce and alimony.

Rafe Trout and family, of Hill Town, Adams county, are visiting relatives and friends here this week.

The sermon delivered last Sunday by Rev. E. L. Knox, at the M. E. Church, was said to be a very able effort.

Mr. Tom Lewis has returned from Green county to the parental roof. Tom says there is no place like home.

A pension detective was giving some of our neighbors a call last Wednesday. What his business was will appear in due season.

Bumbar has it that Joseph White and Miss Mollie Griffin were married at Hillsboro last Thursday. May the angel of peace and plenty be with them.

Miss Ole Gray was given quite a pleasant surprise in Hill Monday evening by several young couples, the occasion being her seventeenth birthday. The evening was spent socially, interspersed with music.
